

Contents

Figures	xii
Tables.....	xxi
Acknowledgments	xxiii
Abbreviations.....	xxv
Chapter I: Introduction	1
1.1 The Aims of this Research.....	2
1.2 Studies in Music Archaeology	3
1.3 Acculturation, Diffusion, and Syncretism	14
1.4 Methodology	27
1.5 Organisation of Book.....	37
1.6 The Research Question(s).....	39
1.7 The Recovery of Music in Antiquity and the Auletic Tradition.....	46
Archaeological Sources.....	46
Iconographical Sources	54
Written Sources.....	56

The Aulos in Classical and Late Antiquity

Chapter II: The Precursors of The Aulos: Art And Tradition from Prehistory to the Second Millennium BC 73

 2.1 In the Beginning, There Was Whistling 76

 2.2 Piping and Whistling within the First Farming Communities 80

 2.3 The Eastern Legacy 84

 2.4 Western Pipes in the East..... 89

 2.5 Bone pipes from Prehistoric Greece 90

 2.6 Anatolia: the Land that Gives and Receives 92

 2.7 What If They Used Metal?..... 98

 2.8 The Aulos in the Cycladic and Hittite Tradition: the Art of Playing Two Pipes Simultaneously 105

 2.9 Wind Instruments in Ancient Egypt 117

 Conclusion 126

Chapter III: The Aulos of Classical Antiquity (c.1000 BC-AD 395)..... 135

 3.1 Classical Antiquity..... 135

 3.2 Homer, the Light Bearer in Dark Times 137

 3.3 The Contexts in which the Aulos was Played 157

 Festivals 157

Contents

Processions	158
Sacrifices	162
The Meal	167
The Contest	168
The Games	179
The Symposion	185
Weddings	188
War.....	191
3.4 Coalescing Situations and Processes	196
Conclusion	209
Chapter IV: The Aulos of Late Antiquity (c.AD 395-600).....	217
4.1 Etruscan Double-Pipes.....	218
4.2 The Roman Tibia	225
4.3 The Tibia in the Theatre.....	232
4.4 The Tibia in Roman Life	235
4.5 System of Classification	238
4.6 Description of Excavated Auloi and Tibiae	246

The Aulos in Classical and Late Antiquity

The Auloi of Pydna	246
The Elgin Aulos	247
The Pompeii Auloi or Tibiae	247
4.7 Possible Transformation of the Aulos in Late Antiquity	251
Conclusion	264
Chapter V: The Musical Past and Present in Fieldwork.....	273
5.1 Introduction.....	273
5.2 Methodology.....	274
5.3 Understanding the Past through the Present: Exploring Similarities between the Sardinian Launeddas and the Ancient Greek Aulos	281
5.4 Fieldwork in Egypt: The Arghul as a Case Study for a Better Understanding of the Ancient Aulos	313
Conclusion	335
Bibliography	365
Primary Sources	365
Secondary Sources	369
Appendices	425

Contents

Appendix A: Written Consent for the Reproduction of Photos and Media	425
Appendix B: Description of Retrieved Auloi and Aulos Fragments	428
The Brauron Aulos	428
The Elgin Aulos	429
The Auloi of Pydna	430
The Auloi or Tibiae from Meroë	432
The Tibiae from Mook	434
The Pompeii Auloi or Tibiae	435
The Maenad Pipes	440
Tibiae fragments from Damascus	442
The Reading Aulos	442
Fragments of Auloi from the Athenian Agora	444